

Burndown Chart

Most activity on our chart is shown to be done towards the end of the sprint. This reflects our process that we described in Iteration-03.plan.md. We like to take most of the sprint to work on our own individual features, then we merge them near the end of the sprint. This helps us deal with all merge conflicts together, so no one loses their work and all features worked as they should.